IS DEGREE IMPORTANT FOR SUCCESS?

Success is when you reach your aim or purpose. Those who are successful have achieved or are currently working to achieve their greatest desires in their life and career. Individuals often have different understandings of what success means to them.

There's no doubt that having a degree can give you a leg up in the job market. But is a degree really essential to having a successful career? In many fields degrees are required in order to practice. But in many other occupations, degrees are not always necessary. Some people provide more importance on experience or specific skills than on degrees. In fact, some people view degrees as an evidence that an applicant is qualified or not. It depends If you're interested in pursuing a field where degrees are required, then obviously you'll need one. But if you're willing to consider occupations where degrees are not always essential, you may have more options open to you.

There are many ways to achieve success in your career without going to university. Some people may argue that university is the best way to set yourself up for success, but there are plenty of examples of people who have been successful without a degree. This is a great option for people who are creative and entrepreneurial. There are many online resources and support groups available to help you get started.

Therefore success in life is not defined by the qualifications what a person carry but the ability, the thinking power, the overall development of the human helps to get success in life.

Course 211- Appreciation of a film

Date: - 27/07/2024

" Chandu Champion "

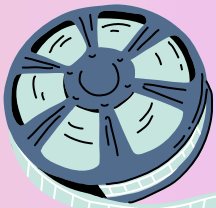

Incharge - Mr.Nandkishor Bodke

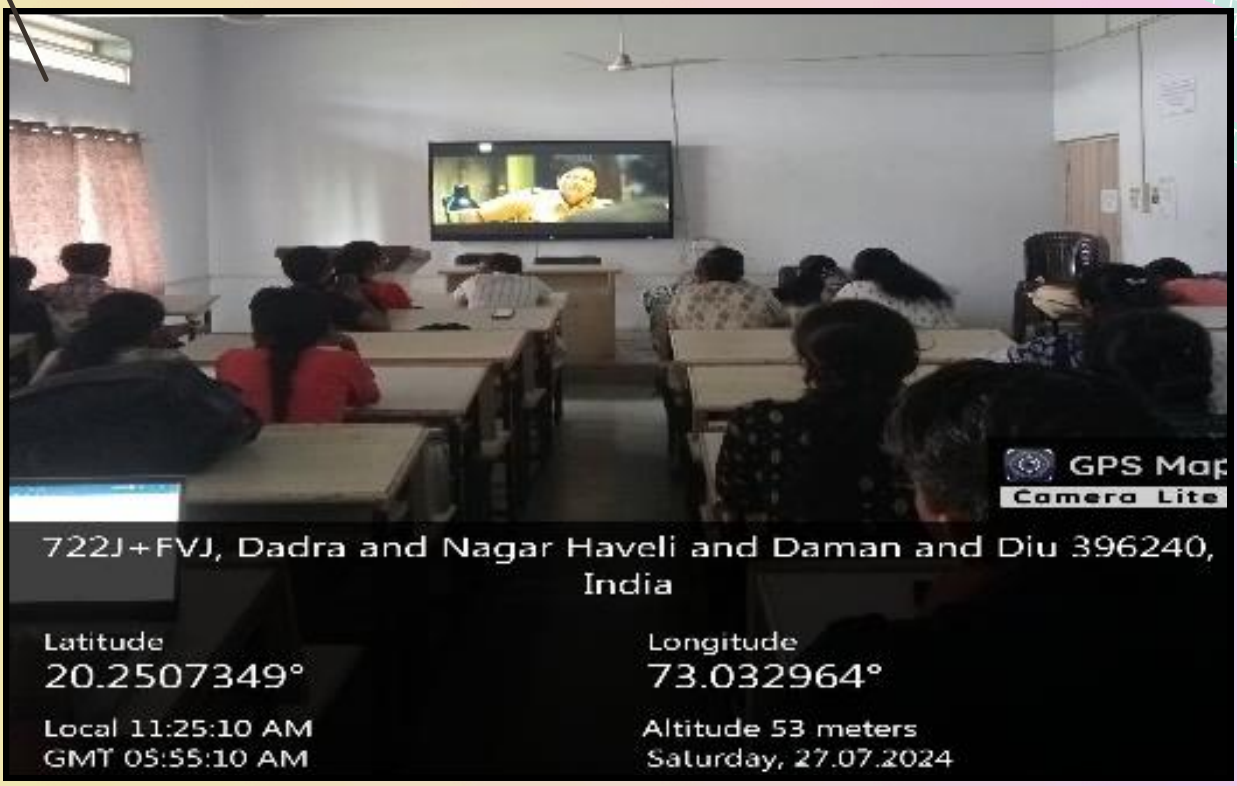

We have organized various activities under course 211(Drama and Art in Education). Film criticism is the study, interpretation, and evaluation of a film and its place in cinema history.

Film criticism usually offers interpretation of its meaning, analysis of its structure and style, judgement of its worth by comparison with other films, and an estimation of its likely effect on viewers. Film theory (e.g. feminist, postmodernist, etc.) often informs the critical analysis of a film. Criticism may examine a particular film, or may look at a group of films in the same genre, or a director's or actor's body of work.

Film criticism differs from movie reviews in several ways: it entails both analysis and judgement; it may be published many years after a film is released; it is usually longer and more complex than a movie review. A movie review documents the critical reception of a film at its time of theatrical or DVD release. It is more "consumer-oriented," placing more emphasis on recommendation than analysis
